

Sue Muir is both a National Reining Horse Association and a Washington State Horsemen judge, and has been training horses professionally for nearly 30 years. Although she specializes in reining, she has trained horses and riders in many disciplines, including hunt seat, saddle seat, western, trail, gaming, and elementary dressage for both show and recreational purposes. She has trained and shown a large variety of breeds, including Paso Finos and other gaited horses.

As a 30+ year student of Patrick Wyse, Sue believes in putting a solid foundation, called the Basic Handle, on every horse, regardless of its intended use. This foundation lays the groundwork for any type of specialized training the horse may need for specific disciplines. Sue's emphasis is on safety, learning, and keeping it fun. Developing good and safe horsemanship skills is Sue's first teaching priority. For more information, Sue can be contacted at Horse@LaserItNow.com.
